GOLDEN CIRCLE

- Thingvellir National Park - is a historic site and national park in Iceland, east of Reykjavík. It's known for the Alþing (Althing), the site of Iceland's parliament from the 10th to 18th centuries. On the site are the Þingvellir Church and the ruins of old stone shelters. The park sits in a rift valley caused by the separation of 2 tectonic plates, with rocky cliffs and fissures like the huge Almannagjá fault.
- Gullfoss Waterfall - Located on the Hvítá River, the 'Golden Waterfall', Gullfoss is one of the most beautiful and iconic waterfalls in Iceland, plummeting 32 metres (105 feet) in two tiers into the river gorge of the popular rafting river Hvítá.
- Geysir Hot Spring - is Iceland's famous geyser located along the Golden Circle in the Haukadalur Valley. In recent years, the Great Geysir has stopped erupting. Luckily, the neighboring Strokkur geyser continues puts on a magical show every 4-10 minutes.

REYKJAVIK

- The Old Harbour - is a beautiful and historic part of town which in recent years has been completely renovated, to become one of the nicest places in Reykjavík to get food, do some shopping, or just to wander around and enjoy the view across the bay and the ambiance of this lively part of town.
- Harpa Concert Hall and Conference Centre - stands out as a unique landmark in continuous interplay with its surroundings. The design was influenced by Iceland's exceptional and dramatic nature. Situated on the boundary between land and sea, the building is a gleaming sculpture reflecting both sky and harbor, as well as the vibrant life of the city.
- Hallgrímskirkja Church - at 74.5 metres (244 ft) tall, it is the largest church in Iceland and among the tallest structures in the country. Known for its distinctively curved spire and side wings, it has been described as having become an important symbol for Iceland's national identity since its completion in the 1980s.
- Laugavegur Shopping Street - is highly known for high-end boutiques, bars, and restaurants. It is one of the oldest streets located in the capital of the country. Just a little longer than a mile, the street is a happening and beautiful place from where you can collect all kind of Icelandic souvenirs.

SOUTH SHORE

- Seljalandsfoss - is one of Iceland's most loved waterfalls. The waterfall drops 60 m over the ancient sea cliffs that once marked Iceland's coastline and is part of the Seljalands River that has its origin underneath the volcano glacier Eyjafjallajökull. The cascade of the falls is relatively narrow but falls from a tall cliff that once marked the country's coastline, the sea is now located across a stretch of lowlands and is visible from the site.
- Skógafoss - is one of Iceland's biggest and most beautiful waterfalls with an astounding width of 25 meters (82 feet) and a drop of 60 meters (197 feet). Due to the amount of spray the cascade produces, at least one rainbow is present any time the sun emerges from behind the clouds. The land underneath the waterfall is very flat, allowing visitors to walk right up to the wall of water. Skógafoss can also be viewed from the top as a steep staircase leads to an observational platform above the cascade. Many nesting seabirds can be found on the route up.
- VIK - is a remote seafront village in south Iceland. It sits in the shadow of Mýrdalsjökull glacier, which covers the Katla volcano. Reyniskirkja is a wooden church dating to 1929. Reynisfjara beach has black pebbles, basalt columns and the Reynisdrangar offshore rock formations. The cliffs of Reynisfjall mountain are home to seabirds such as puffins. Just west, the Dyrhólaey peninsula has a large rock arch.
- Reynisfjara Black Beach - is a beautiful black sand beach near the small fishing village of Vík í Mýrdal in Southern Iceland. The pitch-black beach brings a huge contrast against the explosive white waves and blue seawater. This landmark also impresses visitors with an incredible stack of basalt columns, caves, smooth pebbles and stones, Reynisdrangur sea stacks, and outstanding views west to Dyrhólaey.
